

*The Century Club of California
Room Descriptions*

Ballroom

The elegant Julia Morgan Ballroom was designed by the renowned architect who was a Club member in the early 20th Century. It is the perfect setting for events such as large luncheons, dinner parties/dances, performances, concerts, recitals, and speakers. The stage enhances use of the room allowing a variety of performance options.

Drawing Room

The Drawing Room offers a warm ambiance with wood-paneled walls, a mantel over a large working fireplace, and comfortable seating arrangements all in a setting conducive to conversation as well as more formal activities.

Dining Room

The Dining Room on the first floor is a pleasant room in a rosy hue which can be configured to suit your event or dining needs.

Reception Room

The Reception Room, adjacent to the Entry Foyer on the first floor, is suitable for more intimate events such as meetings, cocktails, or dining.

Meeting Rooms

The Club House has two meeting rooms on the third floor which are accessible via elevator or stairs. The President's and Board Rooms are suitable for small group meetings and are equipped with phone and wireless services. The adjacent Bride's Room is available as part of a Third Floor Suite rental.

Bride's Room

A charming retreat for the bride and her attendants with its own private restroom is located on the third floor and is accessible by elevator or stairs.

Entry Foyer

Upon entering the building you are greeted by the welcoming Foyer graced with Stratford furniture made from the old pews of Shakespeare's church and an antique long-case clock. A grand staircase leads to the Upper Foyer, the Ballroom, and the Drawing Room.

Upper Foyer

With a view of the century-old stained glass windows by Bruce Porter, the Upper Foyer is adjacent to both the Ballroom and Drawing Room. This Foyer can be used by small groups for drink service and limited food service during events in the adjacent rooms.
